

HENRY CAVILL

Henry Cavill has, in just a short amount of time, proven to be an acclaimed actor and a global force in entertainment.

Henry is best known for the dual role of ‘Clark Kent / Superman’ and for becoming the first non-American actor to step into the iconic suit. He first starred as ‘Superman’ in the Warner Bros. & DC film Man of Steel. The worldwide box office hit became the highest-grossing Superman film to date. Cavill went on to reprise his role in the hit films Batman v. Superman: Dawn of Justice and in Justice League.

Upcoming, Henry stars opposite Tom Cruise in Mission: Impossible - Fallout. The latest film in the blockbuster franchise helmed by Christopher McQuarrie will be released by Paramount Pictures this July.

Additionally, Henry has completed filming the psychological thriller Nomis, directed by David Raymond, in which he stars with Ben Kingsley and Stanley Tucci.

Henry made his feature film debut in The Count of Monte Cristo. His credits include the Golden Globe-nominated Showtime series The Tudors; the romantic comedy Whatever Works; the action film Immortals; the action-thriller Cold Light of Day; and Guy Ritchie’s spy film The Man from U.N.C.L.E.

Henry founded Promethean Productions and works alongside co-producers Charlie Cavill and Ben Blankenship, to expand Henry’s involvement in all aspects of film, TV, and live events with a charitable component. They are currently seeking and developing new projects that align with their core values and challenge them creatively.

In addition to his acting career, Cavill is deeply involved in philanthropic activities. He is the Ambassador for Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust, a conservation organization that seeks to save species from extinction. He also works closely with The Royal Marines Charity (RMC), a charity that raises money to provide a better quality of life to both serving and retired Royal Marines and their families.
